Seminar Overview

Global climate change is reshaping economies and societies at an unprecedented pace, with profound impacts on workers. Just Transition has emerged as a central international agenda, aiming to ensure decent work throughout the process of decarbonization. This seminar features Professor Rüdiger Krauser from the Faculty of Law, University of Göttingen, who will discuss Germany’s experience with trade unions, works councils, and labor representatives participating in the Coal Commission and the Coal Phase-Out Act. Through collective bargaining and co-determination, Germany has advanced labor rights in the context of energy transition.

The seminar also invites Kuo-Jung Tai, President, Taiwan Confederation of Trade Unions, Shun-Ji Lin, President, Kaohsiung City Confederation of Trade Unions, and Chih-Wan Lin, President, Yunlin County Confederation of Trade Unions as discussants. Drawing from the frontline experiences of unions in high-carbon industries, they will engage in an exchange with the German experience and explore implications for Taiwan.

We warmly welcome participants from all sectors to join this important discussion!
